Web log data. When you use the Web Site, we automatically receive and record certain information from your computer (or other device) and your browser. This may include such data as your IP address and domain name, the pages you visit on the Web Site, the date and time of your visit, the files that you download, the URLs from the websites you visit before and after navigating to the Web Site, your software and hardware attributes (including device IDs), your general geographic location (e.g., your city, state, or metropolitan region), and certain cookie information (see below). To obtain such information, we may use web logs or applications that recognize your computer and gather information about its online activity.

Cookies. We also use cookies on the Web Site. Cookies are small files that are stored on your computer by your web browser. A cookie allows the Web Site to recognize whether you have visited before and may store user preferences and other information. For example, cookies can be used to collect or store information about your use of the Web Site during your current session and over time (including the pages you view and the files you download), your computer's operating system and browser type, your Internet service provider, your domain name and IP address, your general geographic location, the website that you visited before the Web Site, and the link you used to leave the Web Site.

We collect cookies, except those that are strictly necessary, with your consent. If you are concerned about having cookies on your computer, you can set your browser to refuse all cookies or to indicate when a cookie is being set, allowing you to decide whether to accept it. You can also delete cookies from your computer. However, if you choose to block or delete cookies, certain features of the Web Site may not operate correctly.

Web beacons. The Web Site or the emails that you receive from us use an application known as a "web beacon" (also known as a "clear gif" or "web bug"). A web beacon is an electronic file that usually consists of a single-pixel image. It can be embedded in a web page or in an email to transmit information, which could include personal information. For example, it can allow an email sender to determine whether a user has opened a particular email.

Third-party online tracking and behavioral advertising. We also may partner with certain third parties to collect, analyze, and use some of the personal and other information described in this section. For example, we may allow third parties to set cookies or use web beacons on the Web Site or in email communications from us. This information may be used for a variety of purposes, including online interest-based advertising, as discussed below.

How We Process Your Information

Our legal basis for processing the information we collect for the purposes described below are: 1) our legitimate interest in running and maintaining our business; 2) performance and fulfillment of our contracts; 3) your consent; and 4) compliance with our legal obligations. We specify our legal basis for each use case identified below.

We process, use, and disclose your information for the following purposes:

To provide our Services:

- If you are a user of the Platform, Catch+Release will use your personal information to provide access to projects you are authorized to access on the Platform. In addition, if you are a Creator, we may provide your information to potential customers (licensees) of your content through our Platform or offline in connection with the Services.

- Your Creator Information and Your Creator Content will be searchable by Catch+Release, and other users of Catch+Release via our Services, to evaluate potential licensing opportunities for Your Creator Content. Any license of Your Creator Content from you will be subject to written license and/or release agreement(s) on terms acceptable to You and Catch+Release and in accordance with our Terms of Use.

Our legal basis for processing personal information about our customers and Creators is that it is necessary for us to fulfill our contracts with them. It is also in our legitimate interest to use the information we collect in this context to provide our Services by, for example, providing customers and Creators access to authorized projects on the Platform.

For administrative purposes: Catch+Release may also use your information for our administrative purposes, such as to measure interest in and/or develop the Services, ensure internal quality control, comply with regulatory requirements, process payments, prevent potentially prohibited or illegal activities, and enforce our Terms of Use.

Our legal basis for processing information we collect for administrative purposes is our legitimate interest in running and maintaining our business.

To market our products and Services: Catch+Release's use of personal information may also include providing you with materials about offers, products, and Services that may be of interest, including new content or Services.

We market our products and Services to you pursuant to our legitimate interest in promoting our Services to our customers and Creators.

Analytics and Interest-Based Advertising. We partner with certain third parties to obtain the automatically collected information discussed above and to engage in analysis, auditing, research, and reporting. These third parties may use web logs and/or web beacons, and they may set and access cookies on your computer or other device.

The Web Site also enables third-party tracking mechanisms to collect information about you and your computing devices for use in online interest-based advertising. For example, third parties may use the fact that you visited the Web Site to target online ads to you. In addition, our third-party advertising networks might use information about your use of our Web Site to help target advertisements based on your online activity in general. For information about interest-based advertising practices, including privacy and confidentiality, visit the Network Advertising Initiative website or the Digital Advertising Alliance website.

The use of online tracking mechanisms by third parties is subject to those third parties' own privacy policies, and not this Policy. If you prefer to prevent third parties from setting and accessing cookies on your computer or other device, you may set your browser to block cookies. Additionally, you may remove yourself from the targeted advertising of companies within the Network Advertising Initiative by opting out here, or of companies participating in the Digital Advertising Alliance by opting out here. Although the Web Site currently does not respond to "do not track" browser headers, you can limit tracking through these third-party programs and by taking the other steps discussed above.

Our legal basis for processing your information for analytics and interest-based advertising is your consent, which you may revoke at any time by contacting us through the means identified below.

Catch+Release will disclose your personal information if Catch+Release reasonably believes it is required to do so by law, regulation or other government authority or to assist in any investigation, to protect Catch+Release's rights or our users' rights or to enforce our Terms of Use.

Catch+Release may transfer your personal information to a successor entity upon a merger, consolidation or other corporate reorganization in which Catch+Release participates, or to a purchaser of all or substantially all of Catch+Release's assets to which the Web Site and the Platform relate.

Our legal basis for processing the information described in this section is compliance with our legal obligations.

Other purposes: Catch+Release may use your personal information for other purposes for which we have a legitimate interest, such as direct marketing, individual or market research, and anti-fraud protection.

We may also use your information for any other purposes disclosed to you at the time you provide it with your consent.

To create anonymous and/or aggregated information: Catch+Release may use personal information and other information about you to create anonymized and aggregated information, such as de-identified demographic information, de-identified location information, information about the computer or device from which you access our Services, or other analyses we create. Catch+Release may analyze the aggregate data for trends and statistics in the aggregate, but such information will be maintained, used and disclosed in aggregate form only and it will not contain any identifiable information. Catch+Release may use such aggregate information to

We may use aggregated information in a number of ways, including research, internal analysis, analytics, and any other legally permissible purposes. We may share this information within Catch+Release and with third parties for our or their purposes in an anonymized or aggregated form that is designed to prevent anyone from identifying you.
